Despite being the youngest, new, Sileler "kept the center of the stage with his six sister." And he surrounded himself with people, especially his own children, ranging from 9 years to 9 months, including his youngest son, Stephen, born in January. His 21 nieces and nephews considered him another sister than an uncle. He returned to Sunnyside at the age of 19 to work in his sister's business, Staten Island Furriers, and the two eventually became partners. Although successful in the business, Sileler chased his dream of entering the city's fire department. At the insisting of Kathleen Driscoll, a good friend of both, he left a meeting with Sarah (Sally) Wilson; The two were neighbors when he lived in West Brighton. It was a memorable date. His car broke and they returned home to the contrary. She was reluctant on the date, but they were together from that time. The couple married in 1990 and moved to Meeters Corners. A year ago, they bought a house in West Brighton, who renewed for their numerous Família. And although they had not lived for a long time, "it really looks at home," said Mrs. SILLER. Eugene Eugene (gene) Spillane describes Steve Siller's brief presence in the quarter as "have an angel on Earth." "When I was sick, he was here taking care of the house. We had floods, air conditioning problems, our phone died and came home in a new phone. He bought every day," said Spillane, who is fighting a one severe disease. "Wherever it was, he took our girls and all his children," continued the father of four children. "If he was making a barbecue and you were on your porch, you were eating well that night. He was a barbecue master." The excellent golf player also took his new neighbor on the way, just for a little fresh air, after his operation. The dedicated husband and father were parishioners of the sacred heart Church, West Brighton, where he was a member of the Youth Activity Council and trained trained Cyo basketball team. It seemed not to have an end to the energy he had for others. In addition to his wife, Sally, and his sister, Frank and Russell, also survive his two sons Jake and Stephen; his Train daughters, Katherine, Olivia and Genevieve Siller; Her sister, George, and her three sister, Janis Hannan, Mary Scullin and Regina Vogt. The funeral will be in the ceremony of São Pedro, also M west Brighton. Brighton.
